Thank you for submitting your Literature review proposal.

Your subject matter is from the unit list – thank you.

Your formative is laid out professionally and you have done a very thorough job regarding looking at potential titles and the limitations of research for example. The subject you have chosen generally is very much in the public eye, and from that perspective the assignment is likely to elicit some pertinent findings.

My advice at this stage is to keep your subject focused when you come to write it. You only have 2,000 words and that word count will mount up quickly as you write. Consider the absolute key focus of what you want to explore and keep your research, [from different sources] very much focused on that. It is easy for tangents to evolve in a project like this, which is why I'm highlighting.

As we have discussed in seminars, this module focuses only on secondary research, and therefore I'm mentioning in feedback to keep your research focus on existing literature. Please do not interview/survey people for this project.

With best wishes

Karen
